

Cumbria Strategic Flood Partnership

We're looking for a new Chairperson

Do you understand how flooding affects people and communities? Are you interested in how flood risk is managed? Have you got the skills to gain the trust of a wide range of people?

Maybe you could chair Cumbria Strategic Flood Partnership...

Over 6,000 homes and businesses across Cumbria were flooded in the devastating floods of 2015. Those organisations responsible for reducing flood risk across the county and the communities affected have been working hard together to reduce the risk of it happening again. The people of Cumbria will soon be seeing visible evidence of the £32m extra government investment in flood risk management that has been committed to the county following the flooding.

In 2017 a new Cumbria Strategic Flood Partnership was formed, bringing together representatives from authorities, organisations and community groups who have an interest or responsibility for flood risk management.

We're looking for an impartial Chairperson who will help strengthen and improve the partnership ensuring that communities are central to all our work. The new chairperson would build on and maintain the strong relationships we have established providing collaborative leadership, a figurehead and shared passion for reducing flood risk across Cumbria.
