

COASTAL FLOODING

Coastal flooding has a variety of causes but most commonly occurs from storm surges where high storm winds and low pressure push sea water towards the coast, creating large waves that are likely to overtop coastal defences.

